THE QUEEN AND PARKER

HAWAIIAN LADIES REPUDIATE LILLUOKALANI.

Alleged to Have all but Renounced her at Mrs. Sam Parker's Residence Last Saturday.

Lilluokalani's politics are alleged to have brought upon her the condemnation of some of the most prominent of her own race. According to a report which was generally circulated today she was openly told last Saturday by a number of Hawaiian women that she had worked to accomplish the defeat of Sam Parker and Prince David, and exerted her influence to elect Wilcox to Congress. Moreover they passed severe censure upon her for her reported treachery.

It is said that last Saturday the Queen determined to visit the residence of Samuel Parker and there express to him her regret over his defeat and also to protest her friendship and entirely neutral position during the recent campaign. She did not see Mr. Parker but she found a sufficient number of people to listen to her declaration in the persons of some ladies who were calling on Mrs. Parker.

Whether Lilluokalani detected or thought she detected an unexpected reserve in the manner of Mrs. Parker towards her, is not known. But evident desiring to mollify her hostess the Queen decided to renounce to her any part in the defeat of the Cowboy and to explain her course during the recent campaign.

She is alleged to have introduced the subject to Mrs. Parker and the other ladies present, the majority of whom were Hawaiians by birth and sympathy by expressing regret over the defeat of Mr. Parker. Then from the Queen proceeded to clear her skirts of any political mud by denial of the charges which have from time to time been made against her. She is alleged to have informed her hearers that the report that she had taken any part in effecting the defeat of Mr. Parker was untrue. On the contrary she had not sided against him at all nor had she supported Wilcox against him. The only action upon her part which could be construed as any such thing or having any political significance was her utterance regarding the candidacy of her nephew, Prince David. She had told the Hawaiians that she thought David too young and to inexperienced to be sent to the halls of Congress and for this reason she advised her people to vote against him. It might incidentally be remarked that if such advice was given it was certainly followed in its strictest interpretation.

But instead of this explanation being received with a warm response the words of the Queen fell upon sullen ears. Instead of the ladies rallying to her side and expressing belief in her impartiality it is said she had openly expressed the opinion that she had sided with Wilcox and been most instrumental in bringing about the defeat of Parker. In fact, several of the ladies, women who had known the Queen before she became the ruler of the people, made bold to say that they believed almost every report of her conduct and they renounced it most deeply.

In vain did the Queen renew her denials. Her countrywomen gained courage with every minute and finally Lilluokalani found herself surrounded by an indignant and protesting female chorus. They told her that some of her emissaries had gone out and worked openly against both David and Parker. The Queen denied this statement but in answer the ladies told her that several of those who court her had visited the beach at Waikiki and there advised the natives to vote for Wilcox and turn down Sam Parker. So animated did the ladies become and so positive were they in their belief in the reports against her that the Queen realized that she was no longer with those who were friendly disposed toward her so she discreetly allowed the topic of conversation to be changed as soon as possible followed by her retirement from the house.

OCEANIC STEAMERS TO CALL AT PAGO PAGO.

Apia a German Port While the Other is American—Sierra to be the Pioneer Steamer.

The Oceanic Steamship Company's vessels are to call at Pago Pago in the Samoan Islands hereafter instead of Apia. Apia is in the territory that was allotted to Germany in the recent distribution of the Samoan Islands, while Pago Pago is the principal harbor in the American part of the group.

The change is to go into effect on the trip of the steamer Sierra, the first of the new vessels, which will be here on the 27th of this month. She will be the first American liner to make Pago Pago a port of call instead of Apia and will be the pioneer in what is expected to grow into a big trade.

Pago Pago is on the island of Tutuila, which is American territory under a government similar to that of Guam, the governor being Commander L. S. Tilley, U. S. N. Since the settlement of the nationality question harbor improvements have begun and a naval station is being established. Wharf buildings are now under way.

At the present time Apia is the largest city of the Samoan group, but the change in the route of the Oceanic steamships and the government activities at Pago Pago are rapid causing rapid growth of the place.

The last of the steamers to call at Apia will be the Moana, on the return from her present trip.

MR. MC CARTHY'S HOME

EVERYONE GOT FIVE CENTS FOR BREAKFAST.

The Shipping Master Disciplines an Unruly Boarder and is Fined Fifty Dollars and Costs.

"How to Control Unruly Boarders," a short address to Judge Wilcox by Charles McCarthy, was listened to with great interest this morning in the police court. It cost the speaker a $50 fine. McCarthy's method was a very effective one, but Stephen Hanlon, upon whom he tried it last Friday, objected to some of the proceedings, declaring that they were assault and battery.

Hanlon came to Honolulu ten days ago on a sailing vessel and put up at McCarthy's boarding house after he had worked out $2 and costs. From the first he was a thorn in the side of the management, for he loved swipes and swipes made him sing.

McCarthy shipped him on the Star of Russia, but after he had worked a couple of hours he found that his constitution needed gin. McCarthy gave him some and more was needed and Hanlon left the ship.

The witnesses in the assault and battery case told interesting details of how the boarding house is managed. It appeared that it was McCarthy's benevolent custom to give each boarder five cents in the morning with which to get breakfast. If he wanted then when the arose in the morning they had to wait for the nickel.

"I used to give them a quarter each," said McCarthy to the judge, "but I found that they went and 'not swipes with it'."

The men were therefore given five cents each, and told not to squander it on drink.

Last Friday morning Hanlon rose early. During the night he had danced the can-can on several beds, his feet going through one of them and McCarthy invited him to leave the place. Instead he "not a bottle of swipes and sat on the porch to discuss it. J. N. McIntyre, one of the witnesses, said he sang to it, but Hanlon solemnly informed the judge that he rose quietly after a long night's slumber and did not take even a drink of water.

"He was singing to the bottle when I saw him," said McIntyre. "He always sings when he drink, not that he was drunk this time, for I never say that no man is drunk—but he had the bottle in front of him on the porch and he would sing a song to it and then he would take a drink. After the drink he would sing another song and take a drink again."

Between drinks Hanlon suddenly thought of the nickel that was due him and he left the bottle and went to McCarthy. "How about breakfast?" he demanded.

McCarthy happened to have a bottle himself. It was an "ile" bottle, his gorge rose at the impudent demand for the morning nickel and he swung his bottle on Hanlon, telling him that the best man in the bottle was to be his breakfast. Hanlon retired but he came back.

"He came up to me and wanted to know if I meant it, your honor," said McCarthy, "and then he ordered me out to fight and see which was the best man in the bottle. I looked at him a bit and then I stepped out."

"He put up his fists, but he was a bit slow about leading, so I landed on him, and we had about three rounds," McCarthy's face was bare of marks, but Hanlon wore much cloth about his head and many patches.

"At the end of the three rounds he said I was the best man," continued McCarthy, "and then we shook hands and I asked him if he was willing to behave if he stayed. He said he was, that I was the best man and he would be a quiet boarder."

Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth and Attorney Henshaw had a little war of words over points in the testimony and then Judge Wilcox had his say. He didn't mind a bit of a rough, but he in a sailor's boarding place, but he gave another a blow with a bottle for breakfast. He fined McCarthy $50 and costs and notice of appeal was given.

A large crowd of Hanlon sympathizers left the court room with bright smiles, for they knew that the fine was of the kind that is never paid. When the case reaches the higher court, the witnesses will all be far beyond the reaches of any Honolulu subpoenas.

KILLED BY HIS FATHER

HOW KAHAELELO WAS BEATEN ON LAHAINA.

Election on that Island said to Have Been Conducted in Illegal Manner—Discussing Contest.

Matt McCann, D. H. Kahaelelo and "Oily Bill" Win came over from Lahaina by the Maui last evening. The first two named are here to consult with the Republican managers regarding certain irregularities in the election at Lahaina. White, who will not be Wilcox's secretary at Washington, came to ascertain the plans of his boss.

McCann claims that the election in his burg was illegal for the reason that the requirements in regard to the construction and arrangement of booths, etc., were not complied with. There were no rings or all about the polling place. It is related that independent voters after they had entered the booths to mark their ballots. A thing like that in Honolulu would have caused a fight on the spot, and the same was true in Lahaina. The objectors were overruled and gave the matter up after filing a protest. The Republican leaders do not think they can do anything as no penalty is attached to that part of the law covering the matter.

D. H. Kahaelelo, who was in the last legislature, came down on the same business. He was snowed under at Lahaina by his brother, D. K. Could the Lahaina vote be thrown out D. H. would be ahead. The Republican leaders have replied that the legislature is made the sole judge of the qualifications of its members, and that D. H. can bring a contest therein for his brother's seat.

Mr. Kahaelelo speaks very bitterly of his family in connection with his fight with the Maui last evening. "My father," he said last night, "My father, Judge Kahaelelo, pretended to be working hard for me. He told me to attend to Molokai and other outside precincts, and that he would land Lahaina for me. I accepted this in good faith and followed the advice. My father may be imagined when I returned to Lahaina and found that the old man had been working day and night for the whole independent ticket and jabbing the knife into my Republican ribs every chance he got. He told people straight out not to vote for me, they did not. I was snowed under at my own home. My relatives and best friends did it."

Following the report that "Oily Bill" White will at once submit his resignation from the office of senator so as to get away to Washington as secretary to Robert Wilcox, there is talk of a special election on Maui to fill the vacancy. Judge Kepoika will likely be put up by the Republicans. It was rumored last night that the Democrats and Independents would combine on W. H. Cornwell.

F. H. Hayselden, otherwise "Kikaha," succeeded in handing Lanai over to the Democrats so that Prince David carried two islands—Molokai and Lanai.

The Maui News begins its account of the election facetiously thus: "We have met the enemy and we are theirs."

NOT CORDIAL RELATIONS

CAPTAIN WINSLOW AND THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

A Customs Inspector Asked to Step Away from the Gangway of the Navy Transport Solace.

Cordial relations do not exist between the custom house men and the hospital ship Solace, with the result that there has been a good deal of discussion of various points connected with the duties of the custom house men. The Solace is the vessel which had a very unfortunate encounter with the customs men at San Francisco on her last trip, a large quantity of dutiable goods being seized, and a number of officers being fined.

The custom house men here have not done business with the Solace, except to keep her Chinese on board, much to the dissatisfaction of her commander. She is not rated as a transport but as a war vessel, it is stated, and the custom house men therefore do not do duty searching.

The Solace will probably leave tomorrow for Manila via Guam, and the customs inspectors will be glad to see her go. Several men of them are on the wharf day and night, and they do not seem popular with Captain Winslow.

One of the local men got on board that startled him yesterday from the transport. He was walking about the wharf as usual, keeping watch, when he happened to stop and stand near the gangway. The eagle eyes of some officer on board spotted him and a message was sent to one of the quartermasters. The customs man was told that he was in the way of the sentry's line of march and must step farther from the gangway. After that the relations were still less cordial.

The matter of the rating of the Solace will probably be the subject of an investigation, as it is thought by some that she should be treated as a transport like the others, instead of as a war vessel. She was a hospital ship until she began to do transport service for the navy.

With most of the transports the customs men are friendly as with the Mail steamers. The board of which they are always expected and looked for. Captain Grant of the Sherman offered to help in any way he was able in the work of the customs bureau here.

THREE MEN OVERBOARD

EVENTFUL TRIP OF THE MAUI AND KINAU.

End of a Sailors' Fight on the Maui's Deck—One of the Kinau's Men is Drowned.

Two men fell overboard from the steamer Maui on her trip last week and one from the Kinau, the latter being drowned. The Maui men had a fight on deck and tried to throw each other off, with the result that both went over the stern. The Kinau man opened a port and went through it.

The rescue from the Maui was a remarkable one. The two men fell from the steamer late on Saturday night, while the vessel was in the midst of very stormy weather in the channel between Hawaii and Maui. They are Keahu and Haleakali.

Keahu and Haleakali quarrelled over politics or something else and began fighting. They clinched on deck and began wrestling. The steamer was rolling and pitching very heavily and both rolled on the deck. The end of the fight when they got on a pile of ropes and an unusual lurch sent them both into the stormy water.

The alarm was given and a boat was lowered in quick time. The steamer was going ahead at full speed when the boat fell and took some time to stop her, but both men showed up almost as soon as the boat was lowered into the water. They are young men and both are remarkably good swimmers.

As soon as they found themselves in the water Keahu and Haleakali released their hold on one another, stopped the fight and each looked out for himself. They swam through the waves after the steamer's lights. Neither of them wanted to continue the fight after being taken on board again.

Wainae was the man lost from the Kinau. He started to open one of the ports as the steamer was slowing down at Laupahoehoe and rolling very heavily. As soon as he reached the bolts of the port flew open and Wainae went through them. He was an old man and not strong enough to swim for long in such a sea, and he was never seen after he fell.

The unfortunate man's voice was heard from the water as the steamer went on. He was calling to the vessel to stop. A boat was lowered and for an hour a search was made but Wainae could not be found. The sea was fearfully rough and he must have been exhausted very quickly. Wainae was an oldtimer in island steamer service here. Pursur Beckley says he remembers the man 30 years ago as a sailor.

CLUB TO CONTINUE.

It is understood that the Young Men's Democratic club will be continued as a permanent organization, the province of which will more particularly be the education of young Hawaiians in American history and politics. The idea is a unique one, to the extent, at least, that it is new; but the leaders in the movement feel confident that much good may come of work along that line and in that way.

NOT A SURPRISE.

It will not be a surprise to any who are at all familiar with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, to know that people everywhere take pleasure in relating their experience in the use of that splendid medicine and in telling of the benefit they have received from it. Of bad colds it has cured, of threatened attacks of pneumonia it has averted and of the children it has saved from attacks of croup and whooping cough. It is a grand, good medicine. ## WHAT WILCOX WILL DO

POLICY OF THE CONGRESSMAN AT WASHINGTON.

Says He Knows many Influential Men in Congress who will Help Him—Private Secretaryship.

Congressman-elect Robert W. Wilcox will leave for Washington, D. C., the latter part of the month accompanied by his wife and children. While his plans after reaching his destination are not entirely settled he has, of course, decided upon the general policy which will mark his career in Congress.

"While I do not intend to join forces with either of the old parties," he said this morning, "I have many friends and acquaintances among both Republicans and Democrats who will, I believe, help me accomplish favorable legislation for the territory. Among those who I have already met and who were exceedingly cordial to me are Senator Culum of Illinois, Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island which was my father's native state, Senator Elkins of West Virginia, Senator Foraker of Ohio, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts and Senator Sullivan of Mississippi who I think was the one who worked for the appointment of Judge Humphreys. Senator C. R. Davis of Minnesota who is on the committee of foreign relations is very much in favor of enlarging the harbor at Pearl Harbor and spoke to me of it when I was last in Washington. Senator J. K. Jones of Arkansas is also kindly disposed toward Hawaii."

"Among the representatives with whom I have had relations is A. H. Moon of Tennessee. He was instrumental in bringing about the franchise for the Hawaiians for he brought the matter up in his committee. Representative J. A. McDonald of Ohio is another one who helped the franchise although some of the rich people here do not like him on account of the stand which he took against contract labor. Kindley of South Carolina and J. M. Robinson of Indiana I also met and they aided in securing the franchise."

"I do not expect to do much during the 56th session. The time will be short then and the older representatives will be interested in getting bills of their own passed. Besides, I think it would be more advisable to spend the time in becoming acquainted with the other members and learning the various duties connected with the office. It will all depend upon how I find the conditions as to what measure I will advance first. I think that the harbor here should be improved as soon as possible. We should have public buildings and an indemnity of $200,000 and have the governor's salary raised to $10,000 a year. The opening of Pearl Harbor is another important measure for this place and I will seek to bring this to a speedy completion."

"I have not as yet decided upon who I shall appoint my private secretary. I realize that this is quite an important position and that the man who holds it must be competent in every way so will certainly name only one who is competent. The report that I will appoint William White of Lahaina is incorrect for he has just been elected a senator from his district."

AN ACCOMMODATING RAILROAD.

CHICAGO, November 1.—The Illinois Central railroad, which daily carries 100,000 Chicagoans to and from business, inaugurated a novelty on its suburban trains today in the shape of a neatly uniformed bootblack in every smoking car, who announced that for the usual price he was prepared to make shoes shine like mirrors. This is the first instance of a Western road employing bootblacks, and the passengers who had hurried to the stations over crossings which are ruinous to "shiners" showed their appreciation of the innovation by keeping the boys busy until the downtown terminals were reached.
